FAQ

Is Dura Direct a middle man?

Absolutely not! Simply put, we are your office in China. We do what you want, however you want. Our interests are aligned with yours. We serve as an advisor to identify and manage the most qualified supplier at a national level in China. This is a transparent process where you are given full disclosure of the seller's information such as contact details and pricing.

Is Dura Direct worried it will be cut out of the supply chain if buyers deal direct with China suppliers?

No. We provide value in the form of efficient sourcing, production management, assembly, and QC that saves time and money for both the buyer and seller.

Our clients realize that our fees are easily covered by the savings generated through proper supply chain management and QC. Furthermore, the costs of setting up their own sourcing office or hiring the staff to deal direct with the factory would far outweigh our service fees. Actually, in some cases our goal is to help the buyer "ramp up" production in China and put them in a position to deal directly with the suppliers on their own if desired.

On the factory side, they are more than happy to have Dura Direct involved as we help them communicate effectively with the buyer and offer advice on how to best service the customer.
